The San Diego Museum of Art (located just a couple blocks from the Route 7 bus stop on Park Blvd and Presidents Way), is the region's oldest, largest and most visited art museum. It provides a rich and diverse cultural experience to all visitors. New this year, is the Behold, America! exhibit. The collaborative exhibition from November 10, 2012 through February 10, 2013, will showcase art form the colonial period to the present. The exhibition provides a visual history of art in the United States across three centuries through a rich array of paintings, sculpture, and photography.

Cost: Free Admission

Sessions: The museum offers 45-minute highlights tours, which focus on approximately 20 objects in the Museum, or one-hour tours on a specific theme or exhibition. One-hour tours are scheduled Tuesday through Sunday at 10:00 am, 11:00 am, 1:00 pm, and 2:00 pm. Tours in Spanish and other languages are available upon request. No tours are available on the third Tuesday of the month, when Museum admission is free. Appropriate for all ages.
